Australian Services Union delegates are very important.

They are a workmate who understands your job and who can help to make things a little easier at work.

Delegates provide information, advice, support, and bring workers together to draw on your collective strength for better pay and conditions. Because we understand each workplace is different, delegates are also part of wider conversations in our union to make sure your workplace issues are heard.

To learn more about the benefits of having the Australian Services Union by your side, speak to one of our delegates.

Join the ASU today by speaking to one of your delegates or at <https://www.asu.asn.au/asujoin>
